Introduction

THE METROPOLITAN NEW YORK SKI COUNCIL is a non-profit organization dedicated to the sport of skiing which embodies recreational skiing - Alpine and Nordic -and amateur ski competition, in the form of intra-club and inter-club races. Our interclub race, held continuously since 1936, this our 83th anniversary year, one of the oldest Alpine races.

The Met Council's ski clubs with a total membership close to 8,000 reflect all interests. Some recall our backgrounds, for example, the Norsemen, Swedish and German Ski Clubs; some our workplaces like Grumman or LILCO; others residence locations like New York, Suffolk and Garden City; and even National history - the Tenth Mountain Division. The Council is a forum for local, national and international skiing concerns. It organizes special events and presentations, develops programs, listens to gripes and praises, all part of the friendly and invigorating sport of skiing. Its efforts are very important in helping support the U.S. Olympic Team, the Ski Hall of Fame and working with the U.S. Ski Association and the National Ski Patrol System. "Special effort is continuing to work with the United Ski Industries Association, the new name for the merged National Ski Areas Association with the Ski Industries of America and now known as USIA, located at 8377-B Greensboro Drive, McLean, Virginia, 22102; re promotions geared toward safety in skiing programs and the new skier campaign".

American Skiing was born more than 100 years ago with the Nansen Ski Club of Berlin, N.H. and Norwegian settlers of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan. After the turn of the century, the National Ski Association was formed, followed by its first division, The Eastern Amateur Ski Association chartered at Saranac Lake, N.Y. in 1922. When the Federation International de Ski (FIS) was formed (Chamonix, 1924) the National Organization joined them.

Due to the distance between New York City and these organizations the regional Met Council was begun here in 1934. Since then Eastern has dissolved and USSA has moved to Park City, Utah, making the Met Council an even more important forum for Eastern Skiing.

Founders of the Met Council were an important factor in leading the U.S. ski movement, and witness Roland Palmedo, who played a great part in the original development in Stowe, later starting his own ski area - Mad River Glen. He was instrumental in the early stages of the National Ski Patrol, carrying the number 2. About this time the Metropolitan New York Ski Patrol was formed with Ken Littlefield as chairman. The Patrol newspaper 'Trail Sweep" was started by Ken Littlefield and later carried on by Tom Ludwig, also a council member. Another council member, John Clair, Jr., served for 25 years as Regional Chairman of the Metropolitan New York Region Ski Patrol.

Although fewer than ten percent of our membership actively compete, we enjoy and support competition.

Over the years this council has been host to American and Foreign ski teams and VIP's visiting the United States largely because of it's location and because of the efforts of the late John Clair, Jr.

Letter from Chairman

Hello and welcome to the 2018/2019 Metropolitan New York Ski Council (MNYSC) Guidebook. The snow is falling out West and the ski areas are opening up.

First I would like to thank the advertisers in the guidebook. I would not be able to publish this guidebook without their generosity and support. Please support the Resorts, Mountains, Lodges, and Suppliers. Let them know you saw their ad in this guidebook.

The Metropolitan New York Ski Council represents skiers and boarders from New York City, Westchester, Long Island, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Southern Connecticut. The MNYSC is a proud member of the National Ski Council Federation. The Federation represents Councils throughout the United States. Their mission is to strengthen Councils, with industry participation, so they can better serve member clubs through communication, benefits, education and to influence issues relevant to snow sports.

The Metropolitan New York Ski Council has been in existence since 1933. We have over 47 clubs. More are joining every season. Check out the club information in the guidebook, we have clubs for everyone. The main advantage for joining a club is the FUN you will have, being able to make new friends, ski or board with others who have the same abilities as you yourself. Clubs connect people who have a passion for the sport. Also the discounts offered with being a member of a club. The MNYSC offers discounted lift tickets to multiple mountains in the Northeast. You will also see discounted Council days in the guidebook. You will need to be a club member to take advantage of these offers.

The Metropolitan New York Ski Council is also proud members of these organizations, the National Ski Areas Association, United States Ski & Snowboard Association, Ski Areas of New York, National Ski Council Federation and the Snowsports Industries of America. We are also a proud supporter of the International Skiing History Association.

The Metropolitan New York Ski Council also offers a $1,000 scholarship to high school seniors looking to attend college and college students already enrolled. It is the Harry Walter Voege Memorial Scholarship. The information may be found in the guidebook or on our website www.METNYSKI.org.

The annual race will be held at Pico Mountain, Saturday January 26, 2019. Last season we raised over $5,000 during our after race party that went to various charities and organizations that help support and promote the snowsports.

Please support the smaller mountains in your area. They are the areas that will most likely be someone's first time to either ski or board. The local areas are close and you can get a lot of runs in. We need to bring more people onto the slopes. The sport needs to keep growing. So if you know someone who might be looking to start, bring them with you the next time you go and get them started. Let them get a chance to enjoy the sport as much as you do. Nothing beats a beautiful day on the slopes. The beginners are the future of the sport. Let's try to get as many new people on the slopes as we can.

This is my 13th year as Chairman of the MNYSC. Thanks for putting up with me for so long. Get out on the slopes and have fun.

THE METROPOLITAN NEW YORK SKI COUNCIL HISTORY

The Metropolitan New York Ski Council had its inception as the Central Ski Committee in 1934. Representatives from 6 clubs met for the purpose of finding a way to bring skiing information to New York and to blaze the trails for the adventuresome to escape to the Winter Wonderland.

Drawn together by mutual interests, they worked in close harmony with the press and the Northland in an endeavor to evolve a uniform method of snow reporting.

The Council found and developed its own area at Norfolk, Connecticut, got ski trains to run there, and promoted weekend snow trains to the Catskills, Vermont, and the Laurentians. It got snow reports into the New York SUN, established a practice slope in Phoenicia, conducted interclub races which have been run ever since 1935, gave free instruction in Central Park, infected thousands of city dwellers with the ski bug by sponsoring movies, and helping promote the first winter sports show in New York City. This Council formed the Metropolitan Ski Patrol shortly after the NSPS was started. Ken Littlefield put out a bulletin, TRAIL SWEEP, which has become the National Ski Patrol's house organ.

Over the years this council has been host to foreign ski teams visiting the United States, largely because of its location and because of the efforts of the late John J. Clair Jr. It has also been a leader of the revival of ski touring.

The following is a highlight of events throughout the years:

November 1940 - The Metropolitan New York Ski Council met with ski writers. The meeting was devoted to an exchange of ideas between the members of the council and the press. Means of facilitating snow reports were also discussed. November 1940 - The Amateur Ski Club, member of the Council, sponsored a meeting to award Minot Dole, Chairman of the National Ski Patrol, with the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Associations Safety Trophy. November 1943 - The Swedish Ski Club, one of the most active ski clubs of the east, contributed 17 members to the United States Ski Troops. December 1947 - The Amateur Ski Club hosted the United States Olympic Ski Team before they were sent off to the Fifth Winter Games at St. Moritz, Switzerland. November 1949 - The Metropolitan New York Ski Council was designated by the National Ski Association of America to serve as the official reception committee to welcome all foreign skiers for the world championships to be held at Lake Placid, New York and Aspen, Colorado this winter. At this time the Council had 28 clubs and 7500 members. October 1950 - The Metropolitan New York Ski Council had 30 clubs and close to 10,000 members.

January 1952 - The Metropolitan New York Ski Council hosted the United States Olympic Nordic Ski Squad before they departed to Oslo, Norway for the Sixth Winter Games. 1957 - The Metropolitan New York Ski Council's Ski Development Committee worked with New York State with forming new ski areas in the State.

Past members of the council who had an influence in the ski community:

John J. Clair Jr. - The Chairman of the 1956 United States Olympic Ski Games Committee. John has also held key positions with the National Ski Association of America, National Ski Patrol System and The United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association.

In October 1956, John was named winner of the American Ski Trophy, because of his many contributions to the sport. In May 1970, John was inducted into the Ski Hall of Fame.

Roland Palmedo - The founder of Mad River Glen which opened in 1948.

He was also an author of many books on skiing and developed one of the most extensive ski libraries in America. Roland was also a founding member of the National Ski Patrol.

Harry Voege - President of the New York State Winter Sports Council, Vice President and Director of the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association and he founded The Metropolitan Ski Jumping Committee. He was instrumental in forming ski clubs throughout the Metropolitan New York City area. Harry was also Director of the National Ski Association. From the 1930's until his death, Harry was an advocate of eastern U.S. Skiing. of the founding fathers in promoting winter sports in the Metropolitan New York City area.

Gilson Snowboard & Ski Co. -
The journey of rock-bottom failure to global success

Written by Recover Brands

In the past year, Gilson Snowboard & Ski Co. became the fastest growing snowboard company in the world. Applying their innovative concept for snowboard design to skis with the release of Gilson skis in Fall 2017, there is no doubt the Gilson ski market will soon follow their snowboards. Gilson Snowboard & Ski Co. is truly "your American ski and snowboard company." It sources materials locally, is committed to community and the environment, and is driving sustainability in an industry that, for as much as we love it, is not traditionally "green." But to get to where they are today, business partners Nick Gilson and Austin Royer are clear that it took one thing: failure.

"Success and innovation comes from either the lessons learned during repeated failure or from total accidents," laughs Nick in total seriousness. "Our education system is training us to fear failure and to avoid it at all costs, but failure is the moment when we have the opportunity to learn the most. When something goes right, all you can say is, 'Don't touch that dial!' But when something goes wrong, you can figure out why. As painful as that moment of failure is, we need to squeeze that moment for every last drop of insight."

After graduating from Johns Hopkins University in 2011, Nick moved to Nashville, Tennessee with Teach For America for a job as a 5th and 6th grade science teacher, where he met Austin, who was right next door teaching 7th and 8th grade science. While the two found themselves in front of a classroom of amazing students, the students' experiences were vastly different- one at a second grade reading level, one at a 12th grade level, one student just learning English, all amongst a system that taught to a much-feared standardized test, notable for repercussions for students, teachers and school.

Teaching to a test was not something Gilson and Royer saw as achieving the goals of education, so they re-invented curriculums to teach the critical thinking skills needed to excel on the test no matter what the material, and more importantly to inspire their students to love science and elevate the students to teach and learn from each other as a team.

A foundation of this new Gilson and Royer curriculum was the development of "curiosity projects," which were individual student projects in which each student had the entire year to fully dive into something that really excited them. To introduce the assignment, Nick brought in a snowboard that he made when he was 14, describing that when he was in school, he couldn't wait to get through the day and make it home to work on it, and he and Austin were going to take on designing a new and innovative snowboard for their own "curiosity project;" after all, they were part of the team too.

Nick and Austin's snowboard project was based upon a concept that Nick had thought about for a long time, which is that almost all objects that move through a fluid are designed in three dimensions (think boat, plane, car… yes, air is a fluid too)… except snowboards up until that point. Moving through snow is quite similar to moving through water. Snow and water are both H2O, and so it makes sense that fluid dynamics matter in both. By treating snow like a fluid, the theory was that the two could design and build a snowboard that was not only fundamentally more advanced, but perhaps more importantly, way more fun to ride.

It took the science teacher duo two months to come up with two prototypes, which they took out to Colorado to test during Christmas break. Austin described the experience as "trying to ride a canoe down the mountain." It was an absolute, incredible failure.

Dreading facing the students in January and presenting the data of the boards' complete lack of performance in acceleration and maneuverability capabilities, Nick worked through it. While the hope had been that the teachers would realize a shining example of what success looks like from hard work and exploration, they actually showed them an "example of rock-bottom failure." To conclude, Nick told the students that the teachers were stopping their project because they'd already invested too much time and money, but that the students had to keep doing theirs.

The room was silent and then one student raised his hand and, when called upon, stated, "Mr. Gilson, if you can quit, we can quit." As Nick notes, "Nobody will humble you faster than a fifth grader." Nick and Austin went back to the drawing board with their students and began systematically journalling all of the failings of the process and prototypes, figuring out what went wrong, why their design didn't work and how to potentially fix each problem.

The result was Gilson Snowboard & Ski Co.'s development of "the Soft Edge," a bend in the baselayer of the snowboard and ski that elevates the center from the snow and unleashes the benefits of the new 3-dimensional design. Managing to develop 3 different prototypes that winter, Nick and Austin took the new boards out West for spring break and found the designs to not only be incredibly fun to ride, but that they were accelerating 26% faster than a standard snowboard.

At the end of the school year, the classes had a conversation with their teachers, encouraging them to pursue and invest in making their "curiosity project" of revolutionary snowboard and ski design into a business. Inspired and motivated by their students, Nick and Austin moved to a cabin with no running water with a donkey stable as a workshop in central Pennsylvania and began the process of building a company. Needless to say, they've come a long way.

From the beginning, Nick, Austin and the Gilson team committed to making snowboards and skis that take the environment and people into account in addition to bringing the revolutionary "more fun to ride" technical design to the market. Royer describes, "We try to source as many materials as we can locally and within the United States. The cores are all Pennsylvania Poplar sustainably grown and harvested out our back door, and there is a lumber mill up the road that makes our blanks that we make into our skis and snowboards. We hire local talent to run our manufacturing facility." Nick continues that, "With a background in environmental sciences, we have a deep respect for the earth and forest resources. While we did not specifically set out to address the problems in the industry, we did focus on a much higher quality product blend, and a commitment to environmental stewardship and building a sustainable business that makes good decisions about how we treat people and what raw materials we use."

Upon Gilson learning more about Recover Brands, it was obviously a perfect fit for Gilson's apparel partner. Recover aims to make the most environmentally friendly and socially responsible products possible in the soft goods market. Their clothing line is made from 100% recycled material, and one tee shirt alone diverts 8 plastic bottles from landfills. After a conversation with Recover's co-founder Bill Johnston, Nick notes, "We really believed in and adhered to Recover's mission and approach big time, and the value proposition from the get go."

You can check out the new Gilson apparel line, snowboards, and skis online or catch them in person to demo on the Gilson Demo Tour. Every winter, the Gilson team sends out their 1970s airstream to tour the U.S.'s ski resorts and offer FREE demos… they let their designs speak for themselves. They'll be releasing their 2018-19 Winter Tour Schedule soon, so be sure to check out the schedule and road trip or get out there accordingly.

Hearing about Gilson Snowboard & Ski Co., it's fair to say, failure looks pretty good when you take it as an opportunity to learn, adjust and try again. While we don't all have fifth graders around to call us out, we all do have that something, which drives inspiration and motivation to turn rock-bottom failure into success.

We are passionate about enjoying our days on the mountain. We love skiing and snowboarding and we want both sports to continue to flourish. Encouraging the next generation of young riders to get out and experience the slopes is near and dear to us, and we want you to join us in this mission. We want to make it as easy as possible for you to show them what you're so passionate about.

We are offering all members of The National Ski Council Federation the following: when you buy your new snowboard or pair of skis from Gilson Snow, we'll build a kids board/skis for you to give to a loved one or friend of your family, completely on us. Give it to a young person who you'd love to show how much fun exploring the mountain can be. Whether it's for your kids or someone else's – SHOW THEM THEY'RE FAM!

Paul Hields is the entrepreneur behind Sportube

He is the top seller of U.S. made hard cases for winter sports equipment. His success began with a love story and a crisis.

After hearing about the ski mecca from friends in his home-town of Leeds, England, Paul came to Vail, Colorado post college in 1984. As a young man working at Pepi Sports in Vail, he met Margo, the love of his life and now his wife of almost 25 years.

After 3 consecutive 'ski bum' winters in Vail, Paul returned to the UK as a rep for Dynastar, Nordica and Look. Motivated to be with Margo and after the second application, Paul lucked into winning the Green Card lottery in the late 80s and was able to join her permanently in 1990

In 1991, Paul imported and introduced hard sided ski cases from the U.K. to the U.S. market. He succeeded in getting the product into major outdoor outlets including Sun & Ski Sports, Gorsuch and L.L. Bean. But when the company started selling directly to the stores a few years later, he found himself abruptly out of a job and out of business.

After 4 years of pioneering hard cases in North America, Paul felt this was his market and said to all his dealers "I'll be back". Although he had no previous product development experience, over the next six months he oversaw the design, drawing, sourcing, molding, production and market introduction of Sportube hard cases. "From working in ski shops, I saw firsthand how many skis broke and bags trashed during transport. I knew there was a need in the market," Paul says. "I wanted to work for myself. I found a product that solved a problem skiers were having, and I took it from there."

Despite the extremely tight turnaround, the cases were delivered on time and the quality was top notch. Not only were they larger than the competition, they had two wheels and were made in the U.S. In 1995, he officially launched Sportube at the SIA show in Las Vegas.

"That year I went into serious damage control, having had the UK brand go around me on my accounts, but when all said and done, I was able to recover about 80 percent of my customers," Paul says. "Relationships matter."

By 1998, Sportube's success in ski travel cases had led to a demand in the market for snowboard travel cases and then fishing cases in 2001 and now heated boot bags for 2018. Today Sportube is sold in over 35 countries.

Cochran's is the nation's first IRS 501 (c)(3) tax-exempt ski area. "No child will be denied the opportunity to ski or ride".

A BRIEF HISTORY OF COCHRAN'S SKI AREA

Cochran's Ski Area was established in 1961 when Mickey and Ginny Cochran purchased an old hillside farm along the Winooski River in Richmond, Vermont. Transforming the land with the family's hard work and Mickey's gifts as a mechanical engineer, the ski area consisted of a couple of backyard trails and a short rope tow installed so their children and neighbors could enjoy skiing and race training.

In the next decade, the ski area helped put all four of the "Skiing Cochrans" on the road to Olympic and World Cup success as members of the United States Ski Team, which Mickey coached during the 1973/74 ski season. Not long after Barbara Ann captured the Olympic gold medal in slalom in 1972, the facility grew to four lifts and eight slopes attracting a loyal contingent of children and families from around Vermont.

Over the years, the Cochran family developed a wide array of innovative educational and recreational programs to help bring the community together on our slopes. Today many successful high school, college and World Cup racers still fondly recall their start at Cochran's. But most importantly, legions of Vermonters proudly proclaim, "I learned to ski the Cochran way."

After Mickey's death in 1998, the nation's first non-profit 501 (c)(3) ski area was established to continue this legacy of providing access to healthy winter recreation for local children and families. Since that time, our unique organization has been an overwhelming success in bringing together community resources to serve over 500 area school children each year as well as delivering outdoor educational programming to groups ranging from the Abenaki of Vermont to underprivileged children visiting from New York City.

We now have a state of the art snowmaking system on 100% of Cochran's ski area! Upgrades to the lodge, lifts, and increased programming to serve the year round needs of our community. A successful capital campaign will put Cochran's on solid ground while maintaining the affordable prices, critical open space, and unique character of this little ski area so many have come to love!!
